

With positive words, a person is clothed in dignity as the leaves adorn a tree in summer. But speaking ill strips away dignity as the Fall strips a tree of its leaves.

When we speak ill of others in a derogatory manner we hurt them. We always hurt their reputation, and we can also hurt their feelings should our words reach them. - Forni

Speak ill of no man, but speak all the good you know of everybody. - Benjamin Franklin

